STOP DEPORTATIONS

Demand a Fair and Independent hearing

Ireland does not have a fair, independent asylum process:

- Asylum cases are not heard by an independent person or body; the final decision rests with the minister for Justice John O'Donoghue. John O'Donoghue has stated that, before asylum cases have even been looked at, 90% of asylum applicants will be turned away.
- Asylum seekers are not entitled to legal advice in preparing their applications.
- Over the next months the Government is likely to try to forcibly deport many refugees. The recent death of a young Nigerian woman at the hands of the Belgian police shows what can happen if an asylum seeker is deported back to another country.
- The department of Justice is breaking its own rules by not abiding by the Asylum process. The case of the Costina family proves that people can be deported without warning.

Join the March

on Saturday December 5th

Time: 1.30 Assemble: Department of Justice

- Ireland is fast becoming the land of a thousand deportations rather than the land of a thousand welcomes.
- The same politicians who actively canvassed the American Government to allow illegal Irish immigrants remain in the U.S.A. are now turning away refugees.

If you want your voice to be heard in opposition to this hypocrisy and in defence of human rights come to the march.
